About Cape Cod Community Rowing

Cape Cod Community Rowing, Inc. is a 501c3 non-profit organization that believes rowing is an ideal activity to pursue at any age, building character and community. We support the creation of a healthy, vibrant, and sustainable rowing community for the people of Cape Cod. To do so, we provide the resources and support to make rowing possible.

Our organization was founded to address the needs of what was originally called “Cape Cod Youth Rowing.” Today, our youth program provides Learn-to-Row and competitive opportunities for Middle and High School students. Over the years, we evolved to include Master Rowers (18+ years), providing Learn-to-Row programs, building skills via coached opportunities, and promoting camaraderie for adults in the region. The result is a truly multi-generational community that brings people together.

About the Cranberry Sprints

Since 2017, Cape Cod Community Rowing, Inc. has held a race known as a timed regatta. Our youth and master rowers compete against each other rowing for the fastest time. This year, rowers will have the opportunity to compete in a 1000-meter course with an exciting twist; they must turn around a ‘stake’ mid-race. It is a fun experience as youth and masters showcase their speed and technique with the spectators cheering them on from the beach. As with most CCCR events, participants experience food and laughter along with a friendly dose of competition. Members are welcoming and willing to answer questions regarding our club, the race format, equipment, or anything else that piques their interest. We see the Cranberry Sprints as our touchstone to the community, strengthening our bond and building recognition of our purpose.

This year we celebrate our new name, Cape Cod Community Rowing, Inc. (formerly Cape and Islands Rowing Association, Inc.) and give special thanks to those who have been with us since the beginning.

How you can help

Join the Regatta to support a great cause! Sponsor a Youth Rower for an enjoyable morning of racing. Most importantly, we invite you to support our youth as we strive to encourage them to participate as valued members of a team and community. Donations are also accepted if your company cannot participate in this rowing event.
